Lesson Title: Exploitation & How to Identify It

Instructional Time Required: One Class Session

Lesson Objectives: Students should be able to:

- Define child exploitation.
- Identify the four types of child exploitation.
- Understand the common exploiter of children to watch out for.
- Understand what child sexual abuse material is and how common it is.
- Identify child exploitation when given real-life scenarios.

Lesson Overview:

This lesson starts with learning about what child exploitation is and the four types of exploitation of children. Students will learn about who typically commits exploitation of a child and the statistics correlated to this crime. Students will watch a video called “Sexual Abuse in the Family” created by Fight Child Abuse. This video depicts a young girl who likes attention and gifts but is experiencing sexual abuse at the hands of a family member. Students can see what that can look like, how it could feel, and how to safely navigate their way out of it. Students will watch a video called “Modern slavery and human trafficking” created by Kent Police, which highlights the importance of vigilance and reporting when we see something that doesn’t look right. Students will learn about two real-life stories about exploitation of minors and we recommend having a teacher led discussion after both scenarios.

Key Terms in Lesson:

Child exploitation- refers to a range of crimes that include the exploitation of a minor for sexual, financial, or other personal gain.

Child sexual abuse material (CSAM)- any visual depiction of sexually explicit conduct involving a minor.
